Foreword

As a passionate cyclist, I have been fortunate to experience breathtaking routes in several countries over the years, yet one street stands out prominently in my memory—Abbott Street. It has become an indelible part of my personal collection of great places to ride!

In our industry, there is a saying often repeated: “There are only three things that matter in real estate—location, location, and location.” While this statement may be exaggerated, it holds a profound truth: location is the mortar that binds the brick wall of real estate.

In Kelowna, the Abbott neighborhood exudes a unique aura of lakefront elegance, lined with an enchanting tapestry of historical marvels and contemporary beauties. Along this gentile thoroughfare, there is a corner that has left an undeniable mark—the intersection of Cedar Ave and Abbott Street. Here, Cedar Ave gracefully connects Abbott to the cozy eateries and vibrant shops of South Pandosy Village. This place is remarkable!

It is with utmost pride that our teams have poured their passion into creating Alma, an exquisite low-rise residential community, bestowed with an unparalleled location. In perfect harmony, it graces the corner of Cedar Ave and Abbott Street, offering a haven of charm and tranquility. Pandosy Waterfront Park, long-awaited and meticulously planned, has finally come to fruition—it is a radiant jewel, just a stone skip away, across Abbott Street.

Alma transcends mere bricks and mortar; it is a testament to the yearning of the human spirit to flourish. Within its embrace, your aspirations can take flight, as your senses awaken to the very essence of inspiration.

With heartfelt anticipation,

Jonathan Friesen,
Chief Executive Officer

The Mission Group Story

BUILDING A CITY FOR EVERYONE

After years spent making his mark on the fast-paced Vancouver property development scene, Jonathan Friesen took a necessary mid-career retirement to focus on regaining credibility as a husband and father. This time spent reforming familial bonds instilled in him a conviction that nothing is more important than one's family and the life experiences gained together, a realization that would be key in developing his next venture — Mission Group.

Rather than re-engaging with the development world in Vancouver, Jon and his family relocated to Kelowna in 2002. There, the organization's beginnings were formed with an undertaking called Mission Shores. A cottage-style community envisioned as a place for families to gather and make lasting memories, its profoundly thoughtful approach to design established Mission Group as a builder that carefully considers the lived experiences beyond the homes it creates, carving out spaces for residents and locals alike to truly flourish.

This idea has been central to Mission Group's purpose: to Build It Forward by creating social value through homebuilding, a foundation that's reinforced by an unyielding commitment to customer care. In 2004, Randall Shier joined Jon as an owner, also a mid-career shift from a senior position as a development professional in Vancouver. The two long-time friends enjoy an amiable banter and jousting which, as they have discovered, provide the secret sauce to creating real community contributions.

Over the ensuing years, the Mission Group portfolio has expanded to include everything from single-family homes and townhouses to low-rise wood frame dwellings and master-planned concrete high-rise communities. Intermixed with these residences are Mission Group's purpose-built and self-operated rental buildings, and a signature high-rise office tower.

To this day, all company ventures are still approached with an intention to enhance the neighbourhood and city in which they're built. No matter its style, scale, or unit mix, each new Mission Group community has been carefully envisioned for you and the memories you will make there, uniquely designed to suit a given setting and bring enhancements to the area at large for years to come.

MISSION SHORES

These 54 graceful lakeside cottage-style townhomes brought a first-of-their-kind level of design sophistication to the Okanagan. This award-winning wood-frame community was Mission Group's debut in the city of Kelowna, all the way back in 2002.

SIENA AT SARSONS

Mission Group's quintessential approach to community design through its first fifteen years in operation is beautifully expressed in Siena — a wood-frame community completed in 2017 designed around casual sophistication and spa-like amenities, situated just steps from the lake.

AQUA WATERFRONT VILLAGE

Created in celebration of a deeply rooted love of boating and the lake, Aqua is the most recent chapter in Mission Group's story — a master-planned, three-tower community on the lakeshore, envisioned as a memorable gathering place for residents, locals, and tourists alike.

THE OKANAGAN LIFESTYLE

Everyone has their own version of the Okanagan. Where rugged mountains give way to rolling hills blanketed by vineyards, a shimmering lake in their midst, it's impossible to come away without a story.

Better yet, many and varied are the pursuits of those who call the Okanagan home — golf at award-winning courses, champagne powder at Big White or the region's other famed mountain resorts, wakesurfing or dipping your paddle in the lake's refreshing waters, sipping summer varietals at award-winning wineries or saisons at local craft brewhouses.

There's something for everyone here, in this playground where nature's gifts and urban delights converge.

THE NEIGHBOURHOOD

Strolling beneath the leafy trees that line Kelowna's heritage-rich Abbott Street, it's difficult not to feel a sense of place. As you make your way along its pedestrian-friendly corridor, heritage homes and modern residences intermingle before giving way to the vibrancy of Pandosy Village. All the while, the neighbourhood's prized asset — Okanagan Lake — can be seen twinkling in the sun through the laneways.

In Pandosy Village, there's a buzz in the air, a quiet hum that signals possibility and connection while just a block away on Abbott Street, there is nothing but calm.

This is where you'll find Alma, nestled between lake and city in one of Kelowna's most coveted locales.

A lakefront park. A timeless address.

Serene and demure, Alma gazes across the newly-created Pandosy Waterfront Park towards the waters of Okanagan Lake. An intimate collection of 87 studio to three-bedroom homes and townhomes, each residence in this community has been deliberately designed for rest and repose, echoing elements of the verdant greenspace at your front door.

At Alma, choice is at hand for you to chase the passions that nourish your soul. Take a breath on the expansive terrace overlooking the park and reflect while you take in the calming lake and valley views. Turn your attention to dinner at the barbecue and lounge area, or converse by the glow of a fire when the seasons begin to shift.

Just inside, you'll find a fitness centre designed for focus and mindfulness — find your wellness there in stillness or motion, whichever you prefer. A designer Kinesis machine is the ideal workout companion, allowing for dimensional exercise tailored to your desired level of challenge. Downstairs, Alma's pet wash studio, secure bike storage and tune-up facilities, and parcel lockers provide flexibility and convenience for your every lifestyle choice.

Step out onto the sun-dappled sidewalks of Abbott and Cedar. Strolling alongside lush greenery, you'll be able to browse at the hand-selected boutiques or cafes on the ground level that bring your new home to life. From convenience to connection, all you need is here.

Welcome home.
